

Many instructors make reserved readings available electronically through Mirlyn, the library catalog. Use the following instructions to print or to read them online.

- Start at the Thompson Library homepage (www.umflint.edu/library)
- In the navigation bar on the left, click “Mirlyn: Library Catalog”
- At the top right of the display in the dark blue banner, click “Course Reserves”
- In the Course Name search box, type the course name/number (typically 3 letters, a space, then 3 numbers) and press Enter.

The result of this search is a list of items on reserve for the course. Items that are available electronically contain links to the articles.

Some items are available only in print; for those items you will see a “Location” that begins with “UM-Flint Reserved Readings” (followed by letters and numbers). For print reserves, give this Location to a Circulation Desk staff person, and he/she will retrieve it for you from behind the Circulation Desk.

For electronic reserves (continued)

- Click the title of the article you want to retrieve.
- Click the “Electronic Location”

This will open the article in Adobe Acrobat.

- If the article opens up sideways on the screen, you can rotate it by right clicking on the article and selecting “Rotate.”

From off campus:

If you are off campus when you access the reserves articles, you will have to authenticate (type in your username and Kerberos (or Ann Arbor) password).

- After going to Mirlyn as in the steps above, click Login, towards the right on the dark blue banner at the top of the display. You will be asked for your username and Kerberos password.
- Proceed, as described above, with the steps for accessing online reserves.
