

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN-FLINT

Call for Nominations

2008-09 and 2009-10

Myron and Margaret Winegarden Visiting Professorship

The Myron and Margaret Winegarden Visiting Professorship enables the University of Michigan-Flint to bring scholars of national and international reputation to our campus. The guidelines for the professorship specify that the visiting professors will contribute to the understanding of and appreciation for the sciences and humanities in the context of the merging global world economy. The Winegarden Visiting Professors will be appointed to:

- Teach classes;
- Participate in informal meetings with University students and faculty;
- Conduct lectures for students, faculty, staff, and the community;
- Offer seminars and colloquia for faculty; and
- Meet with students, faculty, and area educators.

The time spent on campus can be flexible.

Candidates for this visiting professorship need not hold a traditional faculty appointment; however, they should be nationally or internationally acclaimed for their professional work. Nominees might be visiting international scholars, academics on sabbatical, professionals or professors in full-time positions. Nominees should be contacted and indicate that they are interested in being considered.
