

Winter Semester –2019 Online Class

Crisis Intervention with Children and Schools -CDR 438

This class is designed to help human service professionals understand and learn techniques to support working with children, families and schools that have experienced a crisis/trauma. You will gain insight into what trauma/crisis could do to a child and subsequently what it looks like in the adults, including how it impacts behavior and the brain. You will learn the difference between “typical” development of children and those who are struggling with crisis or trauma. Innovative information and techniques about crisis/trauma will be explored, including how to support those family members and professional that are working with individuals who have experienced trauma. This class will provide supportive techniques in interpersonal interactions with those who have struggled with crisis and trauma.

This class is relevant to various majors including:

- ⇒ Business,
- ⇒ Criminal Justice
- ⇒ Education
- ⇒ Medicine
- ⇒ Nursing,
- ⇒ Psychology
- ⇒ Public Administration
- ⇒ Social Work
- ⇒ Sociology
- ⇒ Environmental Sciences
- ⇒ Human biology