Must Be Submitted with PETITION TO ALTER/TERMINATE CONTRACT

Definition of Compelling Financial Need: For purposes of contract terminations, this is generally a situation where all possible resources (e.g., parents, student earnings, Federal, State, and University financial assistance, etc.) have been utilized and the resident is still unable to meet contract costs and remain at the University without relocating to less expensive housing. Contract termination will not be approved based solely on the availability of less expensive housing in the absence of compelling financial need. Also, educational loans are considered a reasonable means to meet responsibilities of the housing contract.
